

Big City, Little Things Vol. 1-5

大城小事

A young man who spends so much energy looking for his ex-girlfriend that he forgets his current one; an ex-con willing to do anything for his young daughter; an aging housewife who dreams of recovering her dashed career as a pop singer. These ordinary people and their beautiful ordinary stories come alive beneath young comic artist HOM's inquisitive, compassionate pen, drawing the reader into a world both fresh and familiar. HOM's brilliant use of contrast and narrative pacing brings emotional depth to the characters and their stories, allowing them to represent the fullness of human experience.

The comic Big City, Little Things comes together much in the same way its stories do – piece by piece, and through the power of people.

Truly a homegrown master, Hom began her successful manga career as a hobby while she was working in media and game design. Her science fiction manga The Searcher won a Golden Comic Award for Best Up-and-Coming Artist in 2011. Meanwhile, Hom had been posting comics about real life and real people on her Facebook page, gradually amassing a fan base. Those comics eventually became Big City, Little Things, the series which has come to define her style and artistic acumen. She's currently working with a video production company on a new story, titled The Actor.
