To Live Is To Create

Echoing the creation of stories from people's lives, stories reflect the connections of life, and permeate the theme of the overseas book fair hosted by the Taiwan Creative Content Agency this year. The goal is for overseas readers and publishers to uncover scenes of Taiwan's life and free social culture from the exhibition's concepts and works, thereby allowing visitors to experience Taiwan's liberated and diversified cultural content, and become acquainted with its intimate feeling of life. The brand of Taiwanese cultural content and publications will be strengthened accordingly.

Beyond the Blue: Kuroshio's Voyage

黑潮島航

How have our seas and landscapes changed over these years? The world under the waves is the home of whales, dolphins, and all kinds of marine life. Overdevelopment, air pollution, trash dumping, and uncontrolled fishing by those on land has destroyed ecosystems in the ocean. Wild populations are threatened by habitat loss and caught up in fishing nets, and some are even facing extinction...
"How are our seas?" More than a decade after their initial voyage around Taiwan, the crew continues to worry about the state of Taiwan's marine environment. Now they've decided to answer the call and plan another circumnavigation of the island.

Taiwan's Nature

Non-fiction / Green Island, white terrors, history, local literature

Land of the Scholars

狀元地

Modern day Green Island's image has inevitably been constructed by outsiders, portrayed using stereotypical political intentions or romantic daydreams such as "poisoned", "White Terrors", "tourist attractions", and "undersea vents". The true history of Green Island has always been hidden beneath those strong foreign symbols, with no one to interpret them. Standing not just as the memory of the "White Terrors" of the past, Green Island is also the tourist attraction of today. Who could imagine that fire could ever be planted on two terraces called the "Land of the Scholars" in such a barren volcanic island? The naming of the terraces brims with the unpretentious expectations of predecessors who dedicated themselves to survival. Named after the "Land of the Scholars", this book is co-authored by Ji-Sing Li and his son, Jia-Dong Li from Green Island. Following the childhood footsteps of his father, Jia-Dong Li restores the history of horticulture in the lush rainforest, Mt. Ami, full of the superstitions and spirits of the primeval ages. Describing the life of Green Islanders in all four seasons—catching flying fish, boat fishing, building deer huts, and digging an ancient well, Jia-Dong Li fills in the missing gaps in Taiwan's local literature during the 1950's.

Taiwan's Nature

Non-fiction

She Walks the Kavulungan Mountains

大武山下

Southern view, under Kavulungan Mountains, an ancient literary path between reality and fiction, looking for a place with light. With the endless curiosity, the obsessive dedication like a field investigator, the sometimes ethereal and sometimes deep and atmospheric writings of writers, portrayed the world of Kavulungan Mountains. The unknown writer who consciously "dislocated" physically and mentally, as if driven by fate, returned to the countryside 50 years away and met a missing girl who had stopped at the age of fourteen. A magical journey make life and land, plants, animals, and history to witness the karma. A collected dust murder case opens up the regrets and longings, hugs and abandons, layer by layer, like opening a tightly folded handkerchief with scent hidden in it. This book is about a speculative journey to love and life.

Door-Gods of Taiwan

台灣門神圖錄 (專業典藏版)

Door gods are gods that guard the gates and protect people's houses and properties, also a very important part of Taiwan's temple culture. They usually come in pairs, and all different sets of door gods have their own mythological origins that correspond to the purpose and taboos of the temples. Many gods therefore the door gods represent deeper and more complicated meaning than we expected.
In traditional society, the dedication of door god illustration is deeply related to the "face" of the temple, so that the manager of a temple would usually be willing to pay very high to employ an expert to draw the door gods. In this book, the author collects 205 classic door god sets—including 40 treasureable historical records that had the scenes of traditional Chinese New Year's Eve. With very descriptions and beautiful photos, this book is a very important and exquisite guidebook to Taiwan's art culture.

Good craftsmanship for living in culture

生活在文化裡的好手藝

Folk art is slowly accumulated from life over a long period of time. Every little bit contains the customs hidden within mountains and rivers as well as handicrafts which are a full of wisdom. These handicrafts used in daily life have been passed on from generation to generation, and naturally have become a part of the local culture.
In Taiwan, only original tribes, which are surrounded by mountains and far away from the city, lead a pristine life and can find a few craftsmen who still preserve traditional culture. They use natural materials which come from their everyday life, and they use natural methods such as splitting, taking fiber, hammering, roasting, smoking, dip-dyeing, etc. The craftsmanship, completed by these skills and techniques over time, has been inherited wisdom, has long surpassed the level of art.
This book interviews some representative folk artists, and introduces the context of their inherited skills and life-related backgrounds.

What happened in 1961? The very first astronaut, Yuri Gagarin entered space and marked a great victory for Russia over the United States during Cold War. Entering space was a milestone for mankind in exploring and a symbol of the advancement of technology. It was however the exact same year when Berlin Wall began its construction. "Conflicts and dilemma among human beings are often an outcome rather than an unexpected cause," commented by Wang, who was born in 1961, who is the author of 1961 on The Way.

走進石板屋

In 2017, the Hualien County Government received a grant from the Ministry of Culture to set up the "Reconstruction of the Historic Site Project: Tracing and Remodeling of the Bunun Tribe's Original Location in Lakulaku Creek Basin." The Hualien County Cultural Bureau, together with architectural professionals and Zhuoxi Township's Bunun tribespeople, rebuilt the Jiaxin old tribe's Isasipal family stone slab house in the Yushan National Park, which is 4.5 kilometers away from the Warami Trail. This book records the reconstruction process. Salizan Takisvilainan, a Bunun poet from Zhuoxi Township that was highly involved in this project, contributed several chapters to this book. From clan territory and migration in the river basin to the construction process and space configuration of the house, Salizan Takisvilainan pondered the meaning of "home" in Bunun culture and delicately detailed the rich knowledge and cultural symbols contained within.

Tribal Lanterns

部落的燈火

This book is the second collection of poems by the Bunun writer Salizan Takisvilainan. The book is divided into three chapters. The first one is "The Light of the Tribe," which is divided into six volumes to portray the author's view of various tribes. The second chapter, "Tina's Words," uses four volumes to detail the author's feelings about leaving and returning home, and the tribe's ups and downs. The third chapter, "Writing Poetry in Tina's Words" is composed mainly in Bunun, but also supplemented in Chinese. It thoroughly puts into practice the author's creative ambition through his mother's words. The author describes various forms of tribes with clever and sharp words. He writes about his hometown in Tina's words. He also composes poetry in his mother tongue, and illuminates the homes of the ancestors with warm and bright lights.

The Moonlight and the Glasses

月夜和眼鏡

On a night in which the moonlight gently shines, the old lady is sewing the cloth, accompanied by the lamplight. However, with trembling hands and poor eyesight, she cannot manage to put the line through the needle hole. Just when the old lady is troubled, she hears a knock on the door: a glasses salesman happens to pass by. And thus begins the beautiful and fantastic story in this moonlit night. The Moonlight and the Glasses is the masterpiece from the renowned Japanese children book writer Mimei Ogawa. The story is full of magical aura, and told within a pure voice. Ogawa wishes that, through The Moonlight and the Glasses, he could recall the innocence that is long asleep in everyone.

Famous Paintings: Travel Back to the City Public Auditorium in 1929

名畫紀行：回到1929的公會堂

How should we evaluate and judge a series of paintings from a different political time and space in the previous century? How did they end up in Zhongshan Hall? And why has the world forgotten about them? The painters were Taiwanese or Japanese? We don't have enough clues, except Taiwan Daily News, August 2, 1929 (the 4th year of Showa)... These long-forgotten paintings only reappeared at the end of 2002 and sent to the Taipei Fine Arts Museum when Taipei Zhongshan Hall's storage room was being reorganized. In 2005, art librarian (and famous translator) Lin Jiao-bi embarked on a magical trip to Japan, where she visited many times and traveled all over the country, revealing the background of those paintings and the painters' stories that were once sealed in history. With the kindest and the most vivid style, Lin tells readers a warm and memorable story of the past that happened across countries.

Messages from the Past: History of Taiwan in Letters from the 17th to 20th Centuries

跨越世紀的信號：書信裡的台灣史 (17-20世紀)

Letters used to be an important medium for communication in the past, transferring information, recording events while also carrying feelings and thoughts of individuals. To understand the history of a period, letters provide appropriate source materials. In this book, eight letters are selected to reconstruct the history of Taiwan, including official letters of the governor-general of the Dutch East India Company, postcards from a Taiwanese Imperial Japanese serviceman, and family letters from the son of Chi Kuo Ko - a victim of the White Terror era. The book covers a time spanning from Dutch rule in the seventeenth century to post-war Taiwan in the mid twentieth century. Every letter reflects its historical background and tells an intriguing story. Interpretation of history is often affected by external factors like politics and is frequently manipulated or twisted. Still, history serves as an important basis for self-identity. With letters as sources, this book intends to take a serious and deep look at historical materials and view the history of Taiwan in a new light.

Taste Asean

舌尖上的東南亞——東南亞美食與蔬果植物誌

From the title "Taste ASEAN" and the cover of this book, you can guess that it's a guide of Southeast Asian cuisine and an illustrated book about spices, fruits and vegetables in ASEAN. The first part of the book introduces the history and culture of Southeast Asian countries through the characteristics of food and the relationship between these countries and Taiwan. The second part is about how the markets and settlements of Southeast Asian form and develop in Taiwan with their own special features, and also the records of the fieldwork by the author in these places. Each article will introduce several spices, fruits and vegetables of Southeast Asia, and more than 100 kinds of plants will be introduced. The author tries to make the association of the taste of the food in Southeast Asian with these different colors. The color of the cover, gray-green symbolizes that Southeast Asia is the union of natural ecology and historical sites, and also shows the mystery of it. The horizontal cover with the straight text which makes all the readers must rotate the book is a call from the author. Let's change the viewpoints on Southeast Asia!

Once Upon a Time in Hollywood Taiwan: The Life and Death of Taiwanese Hokkien Cinema

毋甘願的電影史：曾經，台灣有個好萊塢

Film researcher Su Chih-Heng guides readers through the rise and fall of Taiwan's golden age of cinema, a brief flourishing of a blockbuster blockbusters that swept the island nation during the 1960's. Once Upon a Time in Hollywood Taiwan brings this forgotten flourishing of Taiwanese Hokkien film to life. Blending narrative history and critical analysis, the book situates Taiwan's golden age of cinema within the economic and political circumstances of the times. A former researcher at the Taiwan Film Institute, author Su carefully considers the impact of politically imposed Mandarin-language standards, the technical challenges of conversion to color film, and structural problems within the industry in his post-mortem of Taiwan's early film studios. A valuable study of a neglected era of cinematic history, equally a work of nostalgia. Through production stills, period movie posters, and painstaking research, Su pays fond tribute to those who worked in Taiwan's Hokkien-language film industry, and the movie studios where their dreams were brought to life.

Working Time

工作記事

This is the first poetry collection of the China Times Literature Award, Yuan-Cheng Chen. It winner the Songs of Laborers, suspending the subtle and faint feelings. It is a volume of poems in master narrative that can switch between virtuality and reality, you and I, and the endless life predicament and machine noises. Life is just like a poem, the flower of dire shortage. The deafening, unwanted sound can be the fire of imagery. The poet accumulates threads of inspiration within the seam of machines running every day for every inch and every second and tries to verify what he perceives about the urban and the rural, the poor and the rich, the bright and the dark, and the bitter and the sweet. A poetry collection represents an industrial embodiment that is rigorously constructed, while each compiling, reversing on its own and delivering a kind of exquisite vast and solitary. The real environment and spiritual world compress and drag, in each other, which makes everyone a component that can be easily torn down and fit in. Work Notes is a rough sketch about personal motif withering away, the process of feeling out the limit of agony, and a piece of profound, sedate tune staying under the radar.

A Graphic Novel Adaptation by Ruan Guang-Min of Selected Stories from The Illusionist on the Skywalk and Other Stories by Wu Ming-Yi

天橋上的魔術師圖像版：阮光民卷

A graphic novel adaptation by Ruan Guang-Min of selected stories from The Illusionist on the Skywalk and Other Stories by Wu Ming-Yi is based on the 2011 novel of the same name by Wu Ming-Yi. The graphic novel is a collection of eight short stories that take place in the seventies at the famous Chungwa shopping centre in Taipei. The shopping centre consisted of eight buildings in a row. The illusionists and the hawkers connecting the buildings are prominent in these stories, with childhood memories of the shopping centre as a central theme. The protagonists, narrators and perspectives are all different in each of the stories, but persons that appear in one story sometimes appear in another as passers-by. Besides this, memories also create a continuity that makes it seem that the narrators have overlapping memories despite their different pasts. Spinning memories into stories becomes magic, and the narrator skillfully demonstrates his tricks in a marvellous illusion of disappearances, reappearances and invisibility. The last story sheds new light on the stories, making the reader want to re-read them again and again.

人浮於愛

Atypical love explores relationships, love, betrayal and the human connection. These essays are reflections on dating, marriage, and modern relationships between family and couples. While money can't buy you love, sometimes, you have to choose between love and money. Which one is the right choice? Is it okay to prefer one over the other? No matter which season of life you're in, there is an essay in this book that will make you smile, laugh, or even shock, makes you wonder the nature of love. This is the perfect book for anyone who's loved, lost, stalked an ex on social media, or pined for true love. In other words, anyone interested in the endlessly complicated workings of the human heart.

Fiction

The Illusionist on the Skywalk

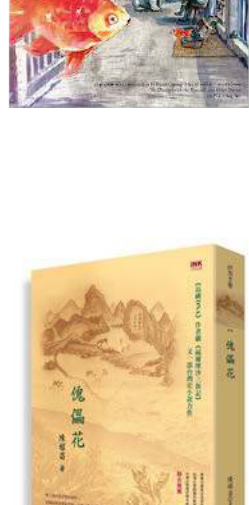

天橋上的魔術師

The Illusionist on the Skywalk is a collection of ten short stories that take place in the seventies at the famous Chungghwa shopping centre in Taipei. The shopping centre consisted of eight buildings in a row. The illusionist and the skywalks connecting the buildings are prominent in these stories, with childhood memories of the shopping centre as a central theme. The protagonists, narrators and perspectives are all different in each of the stories, but personae that appear in one story sometimes appear in another as passers-by. Besides this, memories also create a continuity that makes it seem that the narrators have overlapping memories despite their different pasts. Spinning memories into stories becomes magic, and the narrator skillfully demonstrates his tricks in a marvelous illusion of disappearances, reappearances and invisibility. The last story sheds new light on the stories, making the reader want to re-read them again and again.

Fiction / History

Lady Butterfly of Formosa

傀儡花

The novel describes a story that took place on the Hengchun Peninsula in 1867. The story is based on true historic event and 90% of the characters are real people. "Puppet Flower" (Lady Butterfly) refers to the main character, heroine Pan Diemei, who is daughter of a Hakka father and Princess Jialifan. However, due to rumors, it was misinterpreted as Puppet Fan and later was called Puppet Flower (Lady Butterfly). The story begins with the shipwreck of an American merchant ship Rover. More than a dozen people on board arrived on the Hengchun Peninsula in small boats. They were killed by accident by Taiwanese Aborigines, triggering tensions between the United States and the Qing Dynasty. The US Minister in Xiamen was ordered to investigate the matter. Because of the language, customs, and the previous grievances of the aborigines of Taiwan towards Westerners, the two sides were at war. The war is about to detonate...

SEQALU: Formosa 1867

斯卡羅

Documentary of PTS's flagship epic drama " SEQALU: Formosa 1867", adapted from Yao-Chang Chen's novel Lady Butterfly of Formosa. The story is based on the real historic event "The Rover incident" with a mixture of historical figures and fictional characters. It brings the audience back to Formosa, Taiwan in the 19th century, and reconstructs the ancient stories and beautiful souls on this island. The book contains nearly 200 collections of images, interviews with the director, writers' views, and behind-the-scenes recordings.

The largest scale of realistic cinematic set was ever built for the drama in the history of Taiwanese TV drama. It took three years to mobilize more than thousands of actors, extras, and staff and scouting nearly 300 locations for scenes depicted in the script, such as Pingtung, Tainan, New Taipei, Miaoli. The old time Taiwan 150 years ago was restored as historical scenes such as the former Taiwanfu, Cilaosaq, Tonglingpu, Chaicheng, Sialiao, Baoli, Kaoluts, etc., leading the audience to witness the diverse and rich beauty of the island in the 19th century.

Comics / Happiness

On Happiness Road: Childhood Days

Vol.1-2

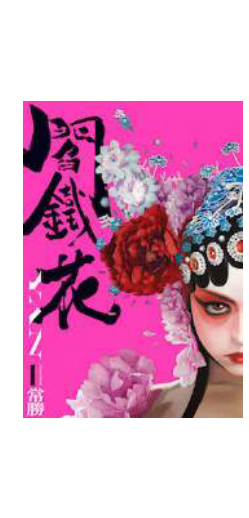

幸福路上: 童年時光套書

Written by Hsin-yin Sung, the director of the original film, and illustrated by the promising new comic artist He Lo, the prequel series retains the warmth and emotional power of the film while adding the charm of comic art and He Lo's fresh and gentle art style. The series is set on a street called Xingfu, a Chinese word meaning "happiness" in 1980s Taiwan. The stories revolve around the daily lives of elementary school student Chi and her friends and family. The vivid characters include an Indigenous grandmother who knows magic; an intellectually-minded older cousin; a mixed-race child whose father is an American soldier; and a child whose family is prominent in the local temple - a diverse cross-section of Taiwanese society of the era. Elements of everyday life that have become part of the collective memory, such as the anime Candy Candy, export-processing factories, schoolteachers running after - school classes, buckets of kuai kuai band snacks to celebrate birthdays, and illegal listening to PRC radio broadcasts, also feature in the stories. The adventures and mishaps of this group of schoolchildren are nostalgic and cozy, like a version of Chibi Maruko-chan set in Taiwan.

Completing the Map of the Word: Cartographic Interaction between China and Europe

全圖：中國與歐洲之間的地圖學互動

In 1644, a Nanjing publisher named Cao Junyi printed a unique world map that he called "a complete map of all under Heaven." He followed certain Chinese conventions going back to the Song and Yuan dynasties, but he also drew on a European map of the world designed by Ortelius and printed in Nanjing by the Jesuit missionary Matteo Ricci. Copies of this map survive today in two national libraries, one in Beijing and the other in London. The two chapters of this book, originally delivered as the Kuo Ting-ye Memorial Lectures at Academic Sinica, each take one of these copies of Cao's map as points of departure to reconstruct a history of world maps that looks back to earlier Chinese and European attempts to map the world and forward to the effects that Chinese world maps like Cao's had on European cartography. This history reveals that Europeans depended on Chinese knowledge of Asia just as much as Chinese depended on European knowledge of world. Out of this interaction emerged the map of the world as we know it today.

Non-fiction / Philosophy of Ming Dynasty

The Mind-Heart School in the Ming Dynasty: Texts and Interpretations

明代心學的文獻與詮釋

This book examines the Ming dynasty Mind-Heart School from dual approaches of document sources and philosophy. It is divided into two sections. The first concerns the early Yang-ming school. Wang Yang-ming was immersed in the mid Ming dynasty world of scholarly achievements, poetry and literature, and the Neo-Confucian Cheng-Zhu school. He called for the study of the mind and body, however, the Cheng-Zhu school had already claimed this field, thus laying the backdrop for the development of the Mind-Heart school. Yang-ming's many early disciples who rallied under the study of mind and body had also developed out of a milieu of scholarly achievements, poetry and literature, and the Cheng-Zhu school. The book's second section concerns the late Ming dynasty Ji-shan school. This book disagrees that Liu Zhuo deliberately distorted posthumous Ji-shan theories, and considers his organization of ideas to be sufficient to serve as a basis for objective research. It also adopts Mou Zong-san's "From Mind to Nature" to interpret Ji-shan philosophy, launched the study of classical history, and developed "gewu" theories on studying the nature of phenomena. Meanwhile, Yun Ri-chu was influenced by Gao Jing-yi and Liu Ji-shan, with the background of his gewu philosophy being ethics and art.

The Hell + series is a recent photographic project of Yao Jui-Chung. Yao takes a long time to visit temples around Taiwan and investigates Taiwan's traditional beliefs. The artist tries to "make heaven like hell and hell like heaven" through his lens. For this project, Yao has been to temples or parks that feature scenes from a Taoist or Buddhist-Taoist hell with animatronic dioramas, hellish murals and images of people suffering. He photographed statues and animatronics found in these dioramas. Instead of presenting the traditional aesthetics of classical sculptures, these statues and animatronics embody an eerie beauty and quirky loveliness of Taiwan's particular aesthetics.

The birth story of "the Dome of Light" in Formosa Boulevard Station of Kaohsiung MRT, appraised as the most beautiful public art work, has finally been recorded and written. The whole process from work commission, production to creation is completely revealed in it. The content of this book records the creation story of this specific public art work, which may be the largest in scale and the most complicated production process in Taiwanese history as well as receiving the greatest attentions all around the world. And yet how did the public art work with such appraisals produce?

In this book, the artist recounted the course of various thoughts after being commissioned in the first-person perspective. How did he face this unprecedented and enormous project? How did he persist and complete each stage to peacefully go through those difficult trials within and outside the work, especially when encountering the difficulties during creation, production and even those from the collaborative team? All of the stories were deftly told in this book with a plain and touching tone.

Comics / Childhood, education

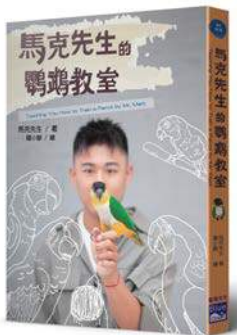

Childhood and Family are the Starting Point of Love

童年與家是愛的起點

This is a unique book that contains the author's childhood stories while elaborates on aspects of family education and intergenerational understanding. This is a recollection of life in Taiwan's agricultural society in the 1950s. Through the description of the stories, let people understand Taiwanese life, cultural background, and family social customs. It is divided into two parts, the first part is the childhood memories, providing elders to reminisce about their childhood and differences between younger generations. In the second half, it's the professional analysis of family issues, and to provide family education and learning ideas, and helps generations to love each other. By reading each story, you may first find out many fun customs and unique cultures of the rural areas of Taiwan back in the 1940s-1960s. And then, the author will use the stories as an example and try to discuss the people's behaviors in the stories with professional aspects of family education and demonstrate ways to achieve an intergenerational understanding. The authors hope that this small book of local literature in the 1950s can bring readers a little joy and warmth during the suppression of the new coronavirus epidemic.

Chips Lion: I can help

薯條獅之我是小幫手(含可愛獎勵卡+畫畫尺)

Empathy and the habit of helping others need to be cultivated from an early age. However, not every child knows what empathy is and how to emphasize others since birth. Seizing the chances to educate and giving lessons through playing are both good ways to cultivate habits. By amusing stories in this picture book, parents can deal with their children's growth and learning issues at ease. They can gradually develop their kids' habits, and the kids' are also willing to be helpful!

A little happiness: Low-carb Cuisines

Made with Air Fryer

健康小確幸! 減醣氣炸鍋料理

The author who loves to share knowledge about diabetes and diet suggestions found an excellent tool for decreasing carbohydrates--air fryer. The air fryer can make the food release its own fat. After knowing that, the author set out to try all kinds of low-carb air fryer delicacies and carefully calculated the nutritional ingredients in them. The result is quite satisfying: an air fryer uses less oil, decreases carbohydrates, and does no harm to the taste. The author turned her reviews and food making process into a book, hoping that more people can have healthier diets.

The Gaps: For those who are suffering

間隙：寫給受折磨的你

This book is about a novelist, Ping Lu, who suddenly knew that she was ill. "Just like the boxing term 'knock out,' I was knocked to the ground abruptly! "In the shock, she collected herself and the trivial things and disappeared quickly. She wanted to cherish the inner connection between certain things and herself. This trip to illness was not only a "gap" to seek for inner peace, but also a thrilling adventure in her creative career, and another peak to climb with words. The most importantly, it was a gift to her readers.

Taming Sheep

馴羊記

The author folds together important historical scenes from the seventh century, the twentieth century and the contemporary Tibet with two story lines from different time and space. The whole novel has a beautiful artistic conception, philosophical thoughts and subtle metaphors. The story integrates various materials such as ecology, geography, drama, architecture, travel notes, etc. The humanistic landscape, herder culture, and Tibetan nature of Tibet are described in detail. This book shows the author's knowledge and fieldwork experience. The affection for land and humanities can be seen everywhere. In the mourning of the death, " Taming Sheep" allows people to see how history repeats itself on this sad plateau, and the plight of the people.

Forty Years of Ups and Downs Between Pai Chung-hsi and Chiang Kai-shek

悲歡離合四十年 - 白崇禧與蔣介石

Hsien-yung Pai, the famous novelist and son of General Pai Chung-hsi, and writer Yen-po Liao have spent many years collecting the materials about General Pai from various sources, in Taiwan and from abroad. The authors did a marvelous job in analyzing the overwhelming wealth of documents, diaries, letters, telegrams, memos. Altogether they accumulated a huge folder of 600K words .Liao wrote the first two volumes Northern Expedition and The War of Resistance, The Civil War , and Pai did the third part Last Life in Taiwan. Pai spent eleven years in Taiwan with his father and witnessed how he carried through those extremely difficult years with such admirable dignity. Although the book focuses on the complicated relationship between Pai Chung-hsi and Chiang Kai-shek, actually it is a revealing study of the causes of the collapse of the Nationalist army on the Mainland China during the Civil War.

Due to a heated public policy debate, the author learned that "time zone" is actually a result decided by certain people with political power. On Taiwan history, Taiwan's time zone was changed twice. The book is a fascinating read and so page-turning, but I'd suggest that you need to stop from time to time to check the details that you may have missed before you jump into your own conclusions too early.

Fiction / imagination, Haruki Murakami

Knocking Out The Whale (New Edition) 敲昏鯨魚 (增訂新版)

"I don't often meet with alligators, because they always make me sad. When I was little, I liked to be sad. I would feel sad listening to Chopin. It was incredible time of youth. Now I have become disliking being sad more and more. How should I put it? Don't you think, being sad is like wearing soaked socks? No body likes soaked socks, unless you're a child who plays with puddles. I said to the book: "Hey, people asked me to introduce you. In my opinion, it's better for you to talk about yourself than I introducing you." Obviously the book paid no attention to my request. It bent down to look at the cover, stretching its body into a W-shaped form. It counted pages, from the first to the last, and back again. I yawned, twice. The book twisted, pointing at its bum, asked: "What is this barcode for?" "Scanning." BAO Guan-Han, one of the aspiring writers in Taiwan, is a verb that can't be classified. She's good at telling interesting stories with reality and imagination dancing together, dramatic scenes with unlimited creativity and playfulness. BAO's novel reads like a painting full of marvels, with unexpected plots and philosophical insights. She has the wild imagination of Haruki Murakami and the charms of a kaleidoscope.

Fiction / Buddhism, monk

Lingering Echoes of the Frosted Bell: Legend of the Ch' an Buddhist Founders 餘響入霜鐘：禪宗祖師傳奇

Jhong Ling, poet, scholar, and novelist, spent four years writing the legend of thirteen founders of Ch' an Buddhism, beginning from the young Bodhidharma in fifth century India who traveled east under his master's orders, to the Buddhist monk Linji Yixuan of the late Tang dynasty of the ninth century. Crossing four hundred years, it covers the history of Ch' an Buddhism, combining detailed research of ancient texts, experiences from Zhong Ling's own practice of the Dharma, and direct guidance received from Monk Baiyun, Master Shengyan, Abbot Foyuan, and more. With the skill of a novelist, imaginative analyses of the behaviors and states of the founders are assembled into a creative plot, life-like founders, and ascetic tales full of human warmth. A brilliant and moving account is written, from Bodhidharma's travels in search of disciples, his miraculous crossing of the Yangzi river on a reed; to Huiké, who did not hesitate to cut off his arm to seek the Dharma; Sengcan, who left behind the famous Xinxin Ming, passing it onto Huineng; the creation of the five schools: Linji, Caodong, Guiyang, Yunmen, and Fayen; Ch' an's growth into profound influence; to the disciples' sacrifices when calamity struck after the founders' deaths.

Fiction / Monsters and beings, local monsters, fantasy, Taiwanese folklore

Records of the Monsters' Wailing Songs in Formosa: Requiem 妖怪鳴歌錄Formosa：安魂曲

Monsters and beings, singing to calm the ghosts--Lord Serpent, Madam Lintou... local monsters come on stage as the Monster Band to save the world! After crashing through the Gates of Hell and witnessing the desolate town between the monster and human worlds, they strive to prevent the collapse of the world and the dire fate of Taiwan by the unsealing of the monsters... This work is the series' finale, crossing borders to combine Taiwanese monsters, fantasy, and songs. Composer Qiu Sheng-yang composes all new songs for the Monster Band in the spirit of Taiwanese folklore, freely exhibiting the monsters' unique style through the Taigi melodies: "Under the Lintou Tree", "Dream, Song of the Golden Flight," and the eponymous mobile game theme song "Records of the Monsters' Wailing Songs." Inspired by Taiwanese monster legends, the novel's magical worldview is based on the Martial Law era of "banned songs" during the 1950's. Unrestrained in style, Taiwan's history is allegorized amidst the monsters' mad dance. Though the story written is that of the monsters' fictitious tale, within it lies the avarice and awakening of humankind, the loyalty and betrayal of friendship, and even the conflict between authority and autonomy.

Sea City 海市

A story of Hakka town girl Ru-Yue moving to city in pursuing her dream. Her loss and gains are prototypes of Taiwanese females of three generations since the 1970s till present. The story also depicts the maze-like city Taipei and its lavishness. The characters carry something that we are familiar with when we thrive for life. KOL teenage girl Fish lives with her mother and brother after the parents' divorce. When faced with critical life decisions, she came across a letter of her mother's from her aunt and five audio tapes, that lead to the discovery of Ru-Yue in the past, and to the path of redemption and rebirth. Author CHANG Zhi-Xing illustrates different approach taken by women in different generation, how women hold their ground in difficulties and struggles, crushed by fate. As the story unfolds, Taipei's iconic establishments in Ximending, such as Wannian Department Store, Lion Lin Building, Ice Palace and coffee shops, all undergo drastic change when hit by the challenge of time, no small or medium scaled enterprises would leave unscratched as the age of Internet rules the world. The city, as deep as the sea, as glittering as the waves, is beautiful and ever weltering.

Fiction / Li Denghui, Peng Mingmin, Taiwanese democracy, revolutionist

Two Paths in a Dream 夢二途

Two lines delineate Li Denghui and Peng Mingmin. Interweaving into two different approaches, two intellectuals who desired to better the world, and two pathways for Taiwan to fulfill its dream, are revealed. Peng Mingmin caught the attention of the government after returning home from his studies abroad. However, he never considered joining the Kuomintang, firmly believing that only reform was realistic. In 1964, he proposed the "Taiwanese Self-Liberation Manifesto", launching a revolution from outside the Kuomintang. Simultaneously, Li Denghui returned to Taiwan from overseas. He too taught at National Taiwan University, and immersed himself in studying Agribusiness, disregarding politics. Yet under others' manipulation, he entered the Kuomintang and waited for his chance. From assuming the office of Taipei Mayor to revealing his talent, he steadily pushed for the democratic election of the president, and became the father of Taiwanese democracy. Peng Mingmin was the first to light up. Yet just as the revolutionist was about to sound the horn, he was extinguished and became imprisoned and exiled overseas. Meanwhile, Li Denghui moved slowly but surely and charged at the turning point, achieving fame. For the sake of realizing their dream of Taiwan, the two set foot on different paths.

Land of the Scholars 狀元地

Modern day Green Island's image has inevitably been constructed by outsiders, portrayed using stereotypical political intentions or romantic daydreams such as "prisons," "White Terrors," "tourist attractions," and "undersea vents." The true history of Green Island has always been hidden beneath those strong foreign symbols, with no one to interpret them. Standing not just as the memory of the "White Terrors" of the past, Green Island is also the tourist attraction of today. Who could imagine that rice could ever be planted on two terraces called the "Land of the Scholars" in such a barren volcanic island? The naming of the terraces brims with the unpretentious expectations of predecessors who dedicated themselves to survival. Named after the "Land of the Scholars", this book is co-authored by Ji-Sing Li and his son Jia-Dong Li from Green Island. Following the childhood footsteps of his father, Jia-Dong Li restores the history of horticulture in the lush rainforest, Mt. Aimei, full of the superstitions and spirits of the primeval ages. Describing the life of Green Islanders in all four seasons--catching flying fish, boat fishing, building deer huts, and digging ancient wells, Jia-Dong Li fills in the missing gaps in Taiwan's local literature during the 1950's.

Non-fiction / aboriginal, identity, gender, gays, mountain

Mountain Talk/ Shandihua 山地話／珊蒂化

Up-and-coming aboriginal author Ma Yihang begins a journey of family reunions and separations, departure, and literacy. The homophone Mountain Talk is a "politically incorrect" word heavily saturated with inquiries of identity, space, households, and writing, yet Shandihua questions with a feminine voice, "Where is this label attached? What is hidden beneath?" And the loss of intimate dialogues of love, of lingering, of turmoil. Fettered by identity or gender, whether vibrant or sorrowful, witness Ma Yihang turn the stories of aboriginals, boys, women, and gays into their true voices, allowing their vividness to radiate forth with the force of a canon. In his mini-series, the terrors of everyday life are seen through the "Personal Picket Fence"; in "If I were Fong Fei-fei, Brother, You Would Definitely Want Me," heartfelt feelings of a frustration more potent than wine are sung. Mountain Talk contains no teaching of his native language, yet the "mountain" is speaking to him; "Ask if You Don't Understand" contains many things he doesn't understand but also things he has been taught. "Shandihua" encompasses women, cupboards, mirrors, and children -- growing up or unable to grow up -- perhaps the meaning of femininity.

Rebellion in Berlin (New Edition) 叛逆柏林 (增訂新版)

I feel Freedom, the true Freedom. I watched this unruly city of rebellion, with my body feeling bloated, enlarged, lofty, easily carried away with a touch of wind. I roared all along: "Here I come, Berlin!" It was not until Kevin Chen came to Berlin that he finally came to know and love his true self. For him, "Taiwan and Berlin are both my home." Why does Berlin rebel? As a city, Berlin has been tied with the burden of history, yet the spirit of rebellion couldn't be smothered. Reborn in ruins, Berlin has demolished the wall that once divided the people and thrived again. In Kevin Chen's book, the city-scape of Berlin in presented in politics, history, education, art, music, tourism and gender issues, with photography as a window to walk past by. Through CHEN's gazes and words, we can feel the city's vibe, its tones, smells, sounds and faces. In Kevin Chen's walks through the street and households of ordinary people, the Berlin in his eyes is wayward, unpretentious, shabby yet sexy, charged with the confidence of the new century and scared by history. His tales of men of everyday life in Berlin are individuals with peculiar stories.

Skin Deep (New Edition) 體膚小事 (增訂新版)

One of the aspiring writers among the 1980s generation and a practitioner, HUANG Xin-En writes about life and death with a rational lens. In the four years of writing Skin Deep, he allowed himself time to feel and to contemplate, finally coming up with this eighty-thousand-word reflection on human body. The hair is the most sensitive, the ear the most arbitrary, lips the most flammable, the shoulders read like a novel, the waist become territory to be ceded or leased. He hides a calendar in the nose; day in and day out, his first contact with the city is through the bottom; he observes lives on their wrists... all the things that start with the skin. HUANG plays around anatomy, medicine, clinical practice and the latest talk in town, with rational observation and humorous tone. The lightheartedness in everyday life, balances with the dignity in ailment. You will read through appendix, beard, spleen, belly button and much more. In every body part, he hears into the human body, while he is actually reading the world he stands in all he examines.

進步與正義的時代：蕭新煌教授與亞洲的新台灣

This book explores the research directions and achievements inspired by Dr. Hsin-huang Michael Hsiao in the fields of social movement, third sector development, environmental governance, Hakka studies, East Asia and Southeast Asia area studies in Taiwan since the 1980s. It not only unveils the macro structural changes of Taiwanese society after the World War II; moreover, it reveals the understandings and sentiments of Taiwanese people towards the ethnic and cultural diversity of East and Southeast Asia communities residing in Taiwan as well. Contributed by leading scholars from fields of humanity and social sciences working with Dr. Hsiao during the past decades, this edited volume also salute the academic contribution and social influence of Dr. Hsiao in his academic career which leads to the meaningful intellectual collaboration and social reforms. Such joint efforts, being of importance, have shed light to the progressive values and practices shared among Taiwan and Asian countries.

I will kill myself because of you: legal anthropological study of a kind of suicide

死給你看：對一類自殺現象的法人類學研究

Professor Zhou Xing's book I will kill myself because of you: legal anthropological study of a kind of suicide systematically analyzes a unique "Sigei" suicide phenomenon in Liangshan of Yi areas from the perspective of legal anthropology. At the same time, the author makes a cross-cultural comparative study on "Sigei" and the custom of "Darenming" in Han areas. By using the method of multi case study, the author analyzes the social structure, cultural logic and values reflected in the phenomenon of "Sigei". Professor Zhou Xing's profound thinking on the theory, method and application of legal anthropology research is condensed in this book. It is a very enlightening masterpiece of legal anthropology research.

Political Preferences in Pluralist Religious Societies: Taiwan's Religious Differences

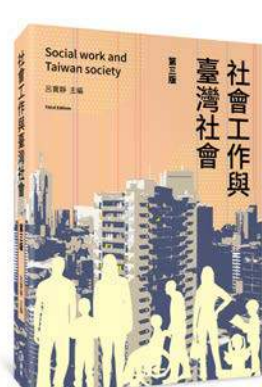

多元宗教社會的政治傾向：台灣的宗教差異

Ever since the introduction of positivism in political science in the 1950s, religion was a useless variable in political research. It led to many political phenomena that could not be explained by religious reasons. This kind of dilemma changed in the 1990s due to the increasingly tense conflicts between politics and religion around the globe. Another reason is the change in ontology and methodology in politics. Researchers gradually realized the important effect religion has on political attitudes, values and behaviors. This effect not only has an influence on what a political society ought to be but also prescribes criteria of morality. In addition, it can build a logical system of political actors too. All of the above concerns the development of democracy.

This book is based on the pluralist religious societies of Taiwan. Accordingly the Presbyterian Church in Taiwan, I-Kuan Tao, Tzu Chi and Bread of Life Christian Church were selected and combined with qualitative and quantitative methods. The reason is to explain how religious sects' political preferences were affected by their theology and its interpretation. This in turn, shaped their comments on contemporary politics. Although this phenomenon did not happen in all sects, some cases proved that religion is still an important factor in Taiwan politics. In short, religious factors are still an important variable in the democratization process in Taiwan.

Spot On Reading 1: Keys to Developing Core Competencies

Spot On Reading is a three-volume series of reading practice books that helps readers develop reading competence and improve their reading-comprehension skills. As the 108 curriculum guidelines emphasize the importance of interdisciplinary and real-life-based learning, this series aims to provide readers with content that spans a wide variety of topics and forms.

Each book in the series contains 60 articles covering a comprehensive range of subjects, including animals, economy & finance, sports, history, and careers, to name a few. Many of the readings also include supporting reference sources and visual materials, such as infographics, timelines, bar charts, and mind maps. The intriguing topics and diverse formats present in this series not only ensure a rich reading experience but also connect the learning process with readers' everyday lives.

In addition, each article is followed by five comprehension questions and a vocabulary practice. The former offers mixed question types, including multiple-choice, short-answer, true/false, and matching questions, designed to stretch students' answering abilities beyond the basic level. The latter contains matching and completion sections, which help readers gain a better understanding of the definitions and usages of each article's vocabulary.

After working through the abundant questions in the series, readers will have learned to answer each type of question correctly and quickly and will be fully prepared for their upcoming entrance examinations.

Hand Job Queen

手槍女王：一個從業職人的真情告白

Liangyuan is unique in her industry - she is a sex worker, but contrary to stereotypes, she did not enter the business because she needed money or because she craved luxury. Now she shares the stories and experiences of a sex worker in contemporary Taiwan. She did not enter the world of sex work to pay off her family debt, nor did she harbor dreams of riches. Giving handjobs was simply “the best job that I could get at the time.” This kind of brutal honesty may come as a shock to many. This is a book about a real person. Liangyuan thinks of herself as an artisan, dedicated to her professional craft through every job and getting paid for her honest work. She is here because people need her services. After she meets the needs of her clients, she tells the unvarnished truth: This is her choice, and this is her life. Her job is giving handjobs.

49 Days With the City God

我與城隍的49天

A love adventure between life and death started right here.
"We all know that humans have seven emotions and six desires. Isn't that their most interesting part?"
Turning 28 years old this year, Chih-Yao, who was abandoned by her mother in the countryside since childhood, has been living with her grandmother for her whole life. She has neither been in love nor wanted to get married. All she desired is to live a peaceful and happy life with her grandma.
Unfortunately, an accident took everything from her. When Chih-Yao opened her eyes again, she found that she had been... Declared to be dead!!!
What's more unexpected is that she got involved in disputes among the bureaucrats of the Underworld! What will be waiting ahead for Chih-Yao's adventure in the Underworld?

All they did is to retain—...
Is destiny created by the prophecy or was already decided?
In the legend, God gave the desert land, Skandar, a blood-red seed, which grew into a miraculous holographic fruit saving Skandar from extinction.
It was believed that the prosper of the holographic fruit was due to the harmonious coexistence of three people, the "Heart", the "Saint", and the "Guard". The apparent peace completely changed after the Saint peeped the prophecy through the sacrificial utensil.
To escape the destiny that has been decided, protect the things we care and retain the important wishes in our hearts, which are often the simplest, the easiest, yet the most difficult to be achieved...

安心國小

The Peace of Mind School series incorporates the concept of Social and Emotional Learning. Through stories that closely resemble children's everyday lives, the stories enhance social and emotional abilities, allowing children to better understand themselves and others, learn how to get along both on their own and with others, and to take responsibility for their own decisions. Common scenarios such as transferring to a new school and campus bullying can resonate deeply with young readers.

The Innocent Virus: The Nuts and Bolts

of Infectious Diseases

病毒不是故意的?!- 認識傳染病大小事

The book starts out to recount some of the better-known infectious diseases in history, where readers will feel as if they personally experience the processes of fighting the black plague, smallpox, and yellow fever. The author then reviews the lives of people around the world after the COVID-19 outbreak. And finally, together with its readers, the author reflects whether the virus that set off this pandemic is really a villain? Viruses are also inhabitants of Earth. Establishing a correct understanding of infectious diseases, strengthening our knowledge, and learning how to live in peace with viruses will be our way to maintain Earth's sustainability.

Henry Lo's Positive Parenting Story Books:

1. Mommy, Do You Still Love Me?

2. Daddy, I Don't Want to Play Soccer!

羅寶鴻安定教養繪本

This picture book, created by parenting expert Henry Lo, integrates Montessori education with the work of Adler and Satir, and contains heartwarming stories and specific practice exercises.

The protagonist in the book Mommy, Do You Still Love Me, Xinxin, accidentally gets into trouble, and worries that her mother would think she is naughty. Grown-ups often feel that they love their children very much, but the way they interact with them makes children unable to feel the love. In Daddy, I Don't Want to Play Soccer!, Chenchen, doesn't want to go to class, but his father is worried that Chenchen will be late for class. See how they resolve their problem and re-establish the parent-child channel of communication!

Advanced Reading Strategies 1-4

Advanced Reading Strategies is a four-volume series that aims to improve students' reading abilities using practical strategies. Each volume corresponds to a level of CEFR—Book 1: Literal (A2), book 2: Inferential (B1), book 3: Evaluative (B2), and book 4: Applied (C1).

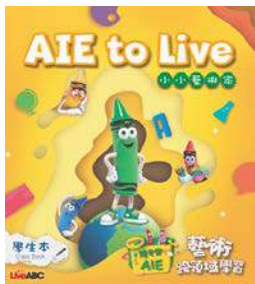

Advanced Reading Strategies contains a wide range of interesting themes, such as traveling, culture, modern technology, animals, and art. This series also features a variety of reading text forms, including articles, stories, recipes, jokes, online reviews, poems, and more. The intriguing and diverse content not only helps get students' attention but also allows them to approach reading in a fun way. The sections within a unit are organized systematically to develop students' reading fluency. After the main reading passage, a number of reading comprehension questions are offered to measure students' understanding of the text. The vocabulary section follows to enhance students' reading comprehension. Then, a brief explanation of the targeted reading skill and its relevant exercise help students apply the strategy to read effectively. After achieving reading fluency, another section is offered to bring students to a higher language proficiency. The writing exercises allow students to research, integrate information, and put their thoughts into words.

With a variety of practical content and systematic learning, there's no doubt that students will improve their reading ability with the series.

Essential English for Meetings

和全球做生意 必備會議英語

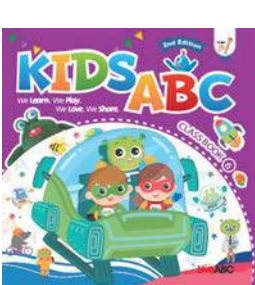

Be proficient in conversational skills and build English communication skills in shopping malls!

In highly internationalized shopping malls, I believe many people have used English to have meetings with foreign customers. However, the common experience of many people is often inconspicuous, hesitating, or even incomprehensible. Such experience is enough to make people feel trembling about meeting in English. Meetings with native English speakers are not as easy as daily conversations, and you cannot easily get confused when you encounter something you don't understand. When holding a business meeting, different specific topics are often involved, and sufficient preparation must be made to express it clearly. In order to help business people who are determined to stand firm in the international market and negotiate business with global customers smoothly, this book plans 9 major themes and 24 scenarios for meeting English conversations.

The combination of knowledge and action, paintings in pictures, imagination

How Genius We Are!

天啊!天才!

There were two little moles living in the cave. Their ancestors were all great geniuses. To be as great as their ancestors, the two little moles began to discuss their "genius" plan...

This masterpiece took the authors ten years to finish. It's a simple story but contains profound truths. Using wild imagination and detailed and ingenious pictures, this book hides the point that "imagination plus action equals creativity" and will lead readers to think about the importance of "the combination of knowledge and action".

The Goddess Buffet

女神自助餐

The Goddess Buffet is one of the most talked-about books in Taiwan, 2020. It has caused enormous impact and led the society to rethink the bitter truth of gender equality. Novelist Chih Yu Liu has observed that women in their daily life are still trapped in a bitter prison, built unconsciously or intentionally by men or even women. Liu broke the sugarcoated illusion of gender equality with great story telling. In the stories, you will find real women exhaustedly trying to survive... A woman must face her classmate, who molested her in school years, in a reunion party; A mother witnesses a sexual harassment case right on the train and she ponders on the strategy to rescue the young victim; A feminist professor in her middle age is worried because she doesn't know what to do if others know she has an affair with a 20 year old student; A goddess who lives more than a thousand years but she cannot escape a date rape; there are still other women in the stories and they will remind you of a friend in real life who might be struggling with the same problem. The Goddess Buffet will lead you step into a malicious world where you never know you have already had a part in it. A book to encourage hope and change.

I, Mother

我娘

You-Jen is a promising new star in Taiwan, who gives stunning performances playing female characters; the most famous one is a middle age mother, who is popular with millions of audience and has won the nickname of "real Taiwanese mother". In I, Mother, his biography, You-Jen tells his story of being an ordinary boy struggling with gender identity: His father is a policeman, who tried to educate him to be a man by giving him tons of masculine action figures. But what he really enjoyed was hiding in his grandmother's room and wearing her dress. The first time he realized he might be gay was when he watched The Matrix and got stunned by the handsome look of Keanu Reeves... I, Mother unveils the complexity and difficulty of being a feminine boy in a traditional Taiwanese family. And yet it goes deeper, encouraging readers to ponder on how to be understanding and affectionate toward family members. Seasoned with tears and laughter, I, Mother is definitely a fun read.

Rounding Error

捨入誤差

"Rounding Error" explores that a person's choice determines his destiny, which means that every choice we make directly or indirectly changes the curvature of each other's lives. And the judgments before making these choices are like those decimals that can never be divisible. For rounding or rounding, you often need to rely on intuition, and the rounding error generated by the choice is each person's unique breathing style. There is no subjective consciousness of right or wrong, which forms the diversity of people, and slowly turns us into who we are now.

Ecclesiastes

艾克雷西亞5

In the agricultural town Eirene, Lee and his companions, and also the princess of Ecclesia met the totally different two world, one belongs to the noble, and the other belongs to the poor. When they tried to figure out where can they find the key person to eliminate the Snake Mark on Lee's neck, they found a great deep gap, and might also including hatred between the two. Not yet solving one puzzle, the next one was nearly coming. Wang smelled a weird odor earlier while they getting into the town. Willing to know what it was, she went into a big cave under the huge black tree known as bless. However, what waiting for her in that cave, was an old man trapped in the black tree root. Seemed he had some magic power, which can bring Wang deep into her nightmare when she faced her father and her life in school...

Ecclesiastes

Jill, the leader of the poor, save Wang from the old man under the tree. From then on, they knew the old man Rajon was the old leader of the resistance, who were all killed by the knight in the Purification War 30 years ago. Telling to Rajon how she told the poor, Jill debated that what hatred leads to would only be war, but only forgiveness could heal the wound. Due to Lee and his companions chose to cooperate with Jill, the noble rejected them. They moved to under ground, then finally saw the true face of the poor. Wang, infected by black tree, woke up a week later. That was the very first time she fought with her inner dark. Jill, also as a pharmacist, would teach her how to win her own battle.

Ecclesiastes

In the formula of black tree inhibition, the Blood Medicine, the key element was the fresh blood of white sheep, which would only appear in the autumn festival hold by the noble. How to get the fresh blood? To steal? Kind of moral struggle started growing in their young heart. Is that really the only solution when they were the poor? At the same time, the knight John led a group into the town, searching for Lee, as an escaped convict due to have the Snake Mark. In the autumn festival, knight John found the criminal action by Wang and the poor. He chased after them, but to his surprise, Lee showed up with the face of Devil of Destruction. The big fight became inevitable...

What is really important in our life? Fame? Wealth? Power? Knowledge? If there is nothing we must hold in hand, then what different between human and animals? Justice was the most important value the knight hold, and was also the centric rule of their action. In front of knight John, old family memories came through Lee's mind. His father was one of the greatest surgeon, and what Lee's parents expected on him was also being a doctor. However, would that really lead to happiness? Jill and the princess came to get Lee back to control, and got everyone back under ground. John surprisedly found that Jill was one of the missing medical family member, who ran away from the palace decades ago. After criminals lost, John asked the noble for help. They went deeply into the ruins of the poor, hoped to get some clues. Out of their expectation, what waiting for them in the ruins was a graph. An Eirene Destruction Graph.

Ecclesiastes

艾克雷西亞9

Earlier in the spring, the chair man of interior from the palace visited Eirene. He blamed on them that what they knew was only step-by-step agriculture, but no other improvement nor development. A dead line was given. If they couldn't make any change, the annual fund would be transferred to other town which doing well. Under this pressure, the noble worked so hard. The poor were the biggest obstacle in the beginning, and then after they found the Destruction Graph, the decision of eliminate the poor seemed to be the most reasonable choice. Meanwhile, Rajon went back under ground, stirring up the hatred in the poor. The war between the noble and the poor, for stable and for freedom, started on. During the conflict, black tree exploded. Everyone was involved. From then on they shocked, what Jill needed to face, was the emotion to the old resistance and the noble who killed all her group 30 years ago; what Wang needed to face, was the distance between dream and reality derived from generation gap; what Lee needed to face, was how to define justice, and how to care humanity. Suddenly, black rain covered Eirene town. Black tree was drove away. They finally knew that only forgiveness could heal the wound was true. The noble owed the poor an apology, and the poor must stop to hate. Jill went back onto the war field, Lee was there waiting for her. Knowing what made Jill feel lucky, was that Rajon was still the one she knew, Lee left. Jill told them the key person, the escaped knight Shalom, was in Chrestotes town. The Eirene story end, and the new chapter would begin...

Diary of the Wuhan Lockdown

武漢封城日記

January 23rd, Thursday, 2020. All transportations were shut down in Wuhan to prevent the coronavirus from further spreading. Later, nearby cities in Hubei followed up with the restriction. Locking down cities as a measure to prevent epidemic shocks the world. Yet no one by then foresees the unfortunate similarity the world will be facing in no time.

Guo Jing, a social worker and a feminist, started her diary journal from the first day of the lockdown, a note about herself in quarantine, about the relationships and connections, about the mental supports and breakdowns, and about the people sharing the same fear and loneliness.

Slovenská 100-years-old Market

【世界的市場套書】

Nanmen Market follows a family's day of shopping, illustrating the variety of stalls and delicacies, the market's history and changes, and the connection between the market and daily life. The market operation, the retail process and the warmth between the stall owners and customers are shown through the pages.

Nishiki is a local market in Kyoto. Before refrigerators were invented, pure groundwater was used to preserve seafood. Fishmongers were concentrated at Nishiki hence, and the first fish market in Japan was born. A variety of stalls joined later, and Nishiki market nowadays was gradually formed. It's a market that satisfies both the appetite and the human need for interaction. Ito Jakuchu, the world-renowned painter, lived by Nishiki market for several years. The readers will find his traces throughout this picture book, and appreciate this art gallery-like market.

Slovenská is a 100-years-old market in Bratislava. It's not only a supplier of food for the locals, but also a library and music hall with an atmosphere of art.

Go for a Ride with Mom

陪媽媽兜風

This picture book is initiated by the Taiwan Association for Victims of Occupational Injuries. As we enjoy the daily convenience of roads, metros, and electricity, have you ever thought of the sacrifices in lives and health that make these conveniences possible?

Accidental work injuries that tear families apart happen on a daily basis. These incidents happen without warning, and have a tremendous impact on lives. How can the remaining family members go on with their lives?

This kind of life lesson described in this book, although initiated by the Taiwan Association for Victims of Occupational Injuries, is an inevitable lesson for everyone that is more common than you think. Although dark clouds may never really vanish by themselves, we can at least hold each other's hands, and step by step, walk towards places where the sun shines.

Salmon King

鮭魚大王

Everyone knows the characteristics of salmon that they "return home to spawn". But where is the hometown of salmon? Salmon King often drives a boat to fish for salmon at sea. This is very hard. So he studied the ecology of salmon and found that salmon usually hatch and grow in the river, they will then swim along the river to the sea. After growing up fully in the sea, salmon calculates the precise time and swims back to the hometown of birth to lay eggs.

If a salmon was born in Taiwan, would it recognize Taiwan as its hometown? If it was born on a fishing boat, is the fishing boat considered its home? And, if it was born in the mouth of Salmon King, what unexpected things would happen? This story makes a perfect combination of knowledge and infinite creativity. It will make you happy with endless memories after reading it!

The story and pictures in this book are full of interests for children. When the author made drawings for this book, he spent a lot of time observing the ecology and appearance of salmon. Therefore, although the whole book is a creative picture book for children, when a salmon is drawn for the book, it is presented in a very realistic way. This interspersed coexistence is one of the characteristics of this book, and the hint can be seen from the big silver salmon on the title page.

That Super Slow Shop

那間慢吞吞的店

Although the sloth's movements are slow, its slowness does have its philosophy for it to survive in the animal world. Even predators that move faster than it can't do anything about it. The author uses "Miss Sloth Opens a Restaurant" as the theme to write a fairy tale about "being slow". This is how it goes: Miss Sloth opened a breakfast shop in the forest and everyone was looking forward to it. There was a long queue on the first day of the opening. However, as time passed, the line did not move forward at all, and everyone's expressions turned from excitement to doubt, and then gradually became restless. Oh my! Why is it so slow! "So--sorry, please--wait--for--a--little--while--" Miss Sloth not only moves slowly, but also speaks slowly! All the customers lost their patience to wait, and left one by one. However, the truth of the matter is that Miss Sloth is not lazy, she is inherently slow! What to do then? Is that there is just no way she can open a shop? Let us try to discover, think, and solve the problems with Miss Sloth! Miss Sloth is so slow, can she open a restaurant and serve the guests in a timely fashion? What challenges will she encounter? How would she resolve the problems? Miss Sloth has her reason for the slow...philosophy! If you want to know the mystery, please visit "That Super Slow Shop"!

Licence to Kill: A Series of Medication-Related Harm (MRH)

X人執照

Warning: This text contains the description about the traumatic events, including medical harm, which some readers might find upset.

Is there any relationship between the tasty Swiss cheese and the miserable medical events? Between the hazards and accidents are layers of defense with flaws in each layer. If aligned, they will probably cause the accident to occur. A father stepped into the medical institution with the faith that he would receive the best care possible. Ironically, as his health got worse and worse, this belief became the intrapsychic conflict, profound and painful. You had better read "Licence to Kill" because the tragedies depicted in this novel are completely real. This is a novel adapted from a painful, true story. Originally, it's nothing but a simple disease. How come Pseudomonas aeruginosa spread in the heart and whole-body blood stream? The heart-broken daughter began to doubt about the unreasonable phenomena like this and decided to open Pandora's box. Is there any hope? Not only does she want to express her ever-lasting remembrance of her father, but she also wishes no medical tragedies would ever again appear in our real life. If only all the doctors would bear in mind the Hippocratic Oath. The writer, a professional doctor, tries to explain the impressing things in a simple way. Take a deep breath, and let her tell you the answers to the questions above, the truth behind the medical tragic story.

Time Lag of the Heart: Narrative Medical Ethics Stories (Psychiatry)

心的時差: 敘事醫學倫理故事集(精神醫學篇)

The word psychiatry is derived from "ψυχή," meaning "butterfly" or "mind" in Greek, which symbolizes the possibility of changes. The word is derived from mythology; it is named after the Greek goddess Psyché.

Time Lag of the Heart tells stories of encounters between interns and patients during psychiatric medicine internships. These stories are representative of the human experience. All characters involved in these stories—both patients and medical interns—continuously learned, adapted, and experienced transformations. The intertwined relationships made the brokenhearted characters desire a transformation, in the hope of breaking out of the cocoon of agony and turning into a butterfly. The stories enable readers to learn about the moving ethical calls involved in doctor-patient relationships and inspire readers to attend to the simplest requests of others. It is hoped that one day, the lost hearts will be led back to their rightful paths, as with the awakening of Psyché in Greek mythology

Love Letter

情批

"Love Letter" is an illustrated poem with the Taiwanese language. The first three landscapes of the book actually connect to form a panorama with forests, log ponds, railroad tracks for transporting logs, paper mills, and old printing presses. The poem is what completes this gentle love letter to the transformation of trees into books. This Love Letter is a confession of love to the author's mother language, to trees, to books, to the entire process of book-making.

Becoming a Cave

成為洞穴 (特殊裝幀圖文畫冊)

Becoming a Cave is Inca PAN's newest book after The Man Who Stoops in Palm Line Canyons. This collection of 51 intricate illustrations and 51 fantastical short stories builds worlds of fantasy that are rich in metaphor and symbolism. The illustrations and drawings can be appreciated separately, but gain another level of meaning when viewed together. The poetry of these works is arresting, the beauty fascinating.

Be Sky Taiwan

風起臺灣

Japanese photographer and author Kengo Kobayashi first found fame with his pictures of Yilan's Shengmu hiking trail in 2018. Thanks to him, the mountain at the end of the trail became widely known as "Matcha Mountain," a symbol of Kobayashi's deep connection with the Taiwanese people. Kobayashi first came to Taiwan because he was moved by Taiwan's support of Japan in the 2011 earthquake. He fell in love with Taiwan and its people, and he committed himself to showing Taiwan's beauty to the world through his photography and writing. Throughout his 2,190 days in Taiwan, Kobayashi has lived with a wind at his back, forever pushing him to discover more of the island's beauty. Taiwan can always bring him new surprises. Be Sky Taiwan is his first foray into aerial photography, the fulfillment of a childhood dream to see the world from the back of a hawk. The book includes photographs of 60 secret locations of stunning beauty around Taiwan and its outlying islands, as well as Kobayashi's journals of his thoughts and experiences when visiting each of them. The beautiful and unique mix of photography and text makes for a powerful read.

Comics / Monster, Kaiju, Secret

The Secret Whispers 1

秘密耳語1

The comic centers on an android boy named Secret, whose true identity is a superweapon of the state in its fight against enemy nations of monsters. He lives life undercover when he's not on the battlefield, attending an ordinary elementary school where he is bullied by his classmates and disliked by his teachers for being different. Secret thinks that life will always be like this, until a newcomer who is just as different as he is joins the class. Secret thinks he finally has a friend, but the truth is much more complicated... The story is an exploration of the boy's budding self-consciousness, where the often painful and awkward process of growing up is projected against a richly imaginative sci-fi background. The cruelty of real life is tempered by the salvation of the imagination.

Secret Whispers Monster Compendium

秘密耳語之怪獸圖鑑

Secret Whispers Monster Compendium is bestiary of kaiju, or monsters, that appear in the Secret Whispers comic book series. The monsters are classified into three types: Genetic Chimeras, Interdimensional Crystals, and Mystic Demons. This compendium was conceived by Fish Wang, and his young team let their imaginations soar as they created an astoundingly vast collection of intricately detailed monster artwork that rivals that of Japanese monster features. The manga and anime expert Chang Ching-lung was then commissioned to design monster genealogies and characteristics based on the artwork, completing a complete bestiary of a wildly diverse alien ecosystem.

The Philosophy of Motzu : Thinking between Motzu and Sun Yat-sen

墨子之窗: 義與不義的真理

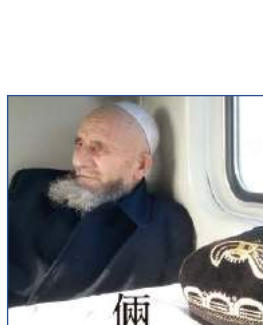

The thoughts of Sun Yat Sen, which as "universal love" and "righteousness" are like Mozi, which promoted the revolution of 1911. Mozi carried forward the thought of "righteousness" to "all the pillar in the world". Sun Yat Sen took his thought as the spiritual pillar of Asian national unity and sublimated it into the driving force of revolution.

Therefore, the author of this book, analyzed from Mozi to Sun Yat Sen, has created an important observation and discussion of contemporary humanistic philosophy, and also brought great inspiration to our social and ethical education.

TEAMMS: Children Language Learning English Books for Elementary Students (STEM Book)

The STEM Book focuses on science, technology, engineering, and mathematics, through which it develops mastery of 14 science process skills essential to all professions and walks of life. These skills range from observing, generalizing, and comparing to experimenting, predicting, and arguing from evidence. Using vocabulary taught in the corresponding Student Book lesson, each STEM lesson features four stimulating activities, each designed to pique children's natural curiosity and teach a specific science process skill. Given the ubiquity and cruciality of STEM in today's world, children who can understand and interpret data, form and test hypotheses, analyze cause and effect, and make data-driven decisions have a marked advantage and increased opportunities, regardless of academic discipline or career.

The Little Bunny With A Spot

臉上有斑的小兔子

Have you ever felt out of place in a group because you are different from others? Do you think you are the weird one? At the school stage, we may feel inferior due to differences in body shape, appearance, or sexuality from people around you. The little bunny in the story has a brown spot on his face, it makes the little bunny look different from his partners; however, he decides to leave the forest. He walked a long, long way, and finally came to a forest where many bears lived. Among the many bears, the little bunny with a spot met a little bear with a spot on his face. They start a conversation of searching their inner mind...

The Yellow Umbrella

小黃傘

This book is like a mirror of you, bringing some questions to you. Readers compare their experiences and situation, and check some ways and responses with these texts and pictures. To the author of the book, the little yellow umbrella is a symbol of "key point", which comes to us at different stages, affect us, and shape us to become who we are now. A key point comes to greet us then leaves, so we can move on with our lives look for the next yellow umbrella. Because of these yellow umbrellas in our lives, we can carry on our life journey... Looking for the yellow umbrella is a journey of self-seeking. Many years ago, I was lost in the remoted countryside in China. I tried hard to find a recognizable landmark. In the distance, a yellow umbrella, soaked in rain and moisture, moved left and right on the foggy hillside. The bright yellow was my only guidance. It moved from side to side along the winding mountain road. Sometimes it went up then took a sharp turn and went down. Finally, it was too far away. I saw it re-emerge. Then it blinked me by and waved a bit as if it was saying goodbye. In a blink of an eye, this small yellow umbrella disappeared behind the cliff and was nowhere to be seen.

Taiwan Literature : English Translation Series, No. 47 (Special Issue on Classical Poetry from Taiwan)

台灣文學英譯叢刊：台灣古典詩歌專輯

Apart from "new poetry" composed in the vernacular language, the tradition of classical poetry originating in China has also been maintained in Taiwan. We cannot ignore the fact that those poets who continued to compose classical verse, as well as the activities of their poetry societies, are yet another aspect of the diversity of Chinese-language poetic development in Taiwan which at the same time has unique local characteristics.

Professor Huang's organization of the issue includes an introductory essay, entitled "Poems that Speak of Taiwan—Speaking of Taiwan Poetry" in which she gives a brief summary of the historical background and special character of the development of classical poetry in Taiwan.

According to her careful plan, Professor Huang divided the poems translated for this special edition into six thematic sections:

1.Taiwan and Taiwanese in the Interstices of History (6 poems)

2.Crossing the Ocean to Taiwan, Putting Down Roots that Grow Along with Chinese Culture (5 poems)

3.Poems on the Aesthetics of Natural Landscape Scenery (6 poems)

4. Climate, Natural Resources, and Food (6 poems)

5. Folk Customs, Festivals, and Sacrificial Ceremony (4 poems)

6. Poems Expressing Emotions, Sentiments and Criticisms (7 poems)

In the poetry selected for this issue we see the rich, expansive content of classical Chinese verse from Taiwan. That verse manifests the responses of Taiwanese poets to their times, to nature, to places and to people. It also reflects the many faces of Taiwan's specific temporal and geographical background through depictions of local experiences and the local spirit.

Changing Christians, Changing Churches: A Sociological Analysis of Christianity in Taiwan

改變中的基督信仰

As a foreign religion in Taiwan, the origin and development of Christianity are quite different from its Western counterpart. This book comprises contributions from sociologists, demographers, economists, and religion scholars, explicating the development of the Christian Church in Taiwan respectively from the perspectives of churches, preachers, and Christians. Taking "sects" as the category of analysis, this collection sociodemographically shows the discrepancies in belief, practices, and identity among different sects, and further link up the world, churches, and believers.

Kant on Freedom: Moral Freedom, Juridical Freedom and Human Dignity

康德論自由：道德自由、法權自由與人的尊嚴

Freedom" is the basic concept of practical philosophy. It seems to be self-evident that Immanuel Kant has incorporated the Rechtslehre and Tugendlehre into a greater moral philosophy system. The construction of such a large system enabled Rechtslehre to bring about a dimension of moral metaphysics, and made "ones develop virtues by external coercive laws and through self-reflection" possible. This book further traces to the concept of freedom in the ontology of rationality, and explicitly states that the basic human rights of freedom is the inviolable dignity of "Menschheit."

Leisure, Body and Politics: A History of Swimming in Modern China

閒暇、身體與政治：近代中國游泳文化

This book examines the relationship between leisure and politics by analyzing the formation and development of the swimming culture in modern China. The popularization of swimming in China demonstrates the localization process of a Western leisure activity spreading from the coastal regions to the central political area. Swimming represented a significant driving force of social and political change in modern China, and the swimming pool in Republican China was a new urban public space for young men and women to experience and showcase the modern lifestyle. At the same time, political authorities extended their power into the swimming pool, attempting to regulate the leisure space and the bodies of common people according to the ideology of the state. Swimming and sea bathing also transformed the physical landscape and the popular concept of the seaside. Leisure and national politics became further intertwined after the communist regime was founded in 1949. "Mass swimming" became a political activity through which the masses practiced and performed Maoism. Ironically, many people tried to flee from China by means of swimming, thereby turning swimming into an ambiguous political symbol that represented both common people's loyalty to and repudiation of Mao Zedong.

The Phytoseiidae are among the best-known mite families, with more than 2,700 recorded species worldwide. Some of those phytoseiids are used as biocontrol agents to fight agricultural pests. But in order to study their potential, it has become urgent to first establish a reliable taxonomy of Phytoseiidae. This book presents a general review of the classification and external morphology of the family Phytoseiidae in Taiwan and neighboring islands. Between 2009 and 2019, more than 20,000 specimens were gathered over the course of 2,500 collections. This book focuses on 64 species belonging to three subfamilies and fourteen genera, among which are five novel species and eight newly-recorded species; it provides their descriptions and illustrations, as well as information on their habitat plants and food habits.

Postcoloniality and Memories of Japan: Twenty-First-Century Taiwanese Fiction

後殖民與日治記憶：二十一世紀台灣小說

Revisiting Taiwan's Japanese Period (1895-1945) has become a major feature of twenty-first-century Taiwanese fiction and film. Many contemporary Taiwanese novelists and filmmakers find it important to understand what the Taiwanese (including the aboriginals) thought and believed as well as the structure of feelings they harbored during that period, a period that was denigrated and largely obliterated in official history during postwar Kuomintang's martial rule. Perhaps just as importantly, these contemporary authors and filmmakers are concerned with how the Taiwanese (including the aboriginals) living through these two periods re-membered the Japanese Period.

By contextualizing novels by Shih Shu-ching, Li Ang, Wu Ming-yi, Kuo Chiang-Sheng, and Gan Yao-ming as well as Wei Te-sheng's feature film Seediq Bale, in tandem with careful readings of these texts, this book argues that these texts can be seen as engaged in a large project of re-memory from a postcolonial perspective. Revisiting Taiwan's Japanese Period in these texts not only explores pro-Japanese, anti-Japanese sentiments, and ambivalence toward Japan, but highlights an evaluation of Japanese and Kuomintang rule. Reconnecting prewar and postwar Taiwan eventually points to Taiwan's postcoloniality by suggesting Taiwan is a young nation with its long colonial history, with its people both fighting colonialisms and influenced by colonial legacies.

秩序與混沌：轉型中國的「社會奇蹟」

The past half a century has witnessed China's profound socioeconomic changes at an accelerated pace since 1990s. In spite of such unprecedented transformations as the drastic shifts in values, the social and geographical mobility of citizens in hundreds of millions, the large-scale urban development, and the increasing social polarization, there has been no fierce conflict between social groups, and the social order is generally well maintained. How can we account for such a China Stability Myth? This book unfolds the politico-social stability of Chinese society during its rapid change since the late 1970s. Different from the analysis provided by macroeconomics or the state institutions approach, this research draws on insights from the society-centered theories and is devoted to rediscovering the society." Through a combination of field research, institutional analysis and historiography, this study discovers the "invisible system of society" from the fabrics of social life. Meanwhile, the reality is situated in a historical context to gain insight of the dialectical relationship between chaos and order in a transitioning society. Proposing some important concepts such as "key systems of society, politics of transition", meta-frame of social transition and "the state of liminality", the author demonstrates how the deep-seated social structure affects the operation of the whole society as well as the change of political and economic situation.establishment of the law to the management of the archives.

The World and the Human: Husserl's Phenomenological Psychology

世界與人：胡塞爾的現象學心理學

Phenomenological psychology aims to clarify how the life of the Mensch's world is structured and to state its essence. The first part of The World and the Human discusses the relationship between psychology and phenomenological psychology. The second part explores Husserl's views on philosophy and transcendental phenomenology, and the third part deals with related discourses on phenomenological psychology in Husserl's later days and further states "how phenomenology has laid the foundation for the humanities and social sciences" through Alfred Schutz's discussions.

The Spirit of Struggle : Liu He-ruo and His Times

奮鬥的心靈：呂赫若與他的時代

Liu He-ruo (1914-1950?) is prominent standard-bearer of the Taiwanese New Literature Movement." The Spirit of Struggle traces footprints of Lu's life, beginning from his debut as a writer with a flashback to his birth, and then multifacetedly reviewing his activities in the era of Taiwanese New Literature. With a scrupulous analysis of his oeuvre, this book demonstrates the gradual process of Lu's departure from the influence of the "proletarian literature movement" to his depiction of "the common people" in the Taiwanese family traditions.

Bunny the Secret Keeper

秘密小兔

How many times have we said in our life, "Do you want to hear a secret? But promise me you won't tell anyone!", and how many times have we told another person someone's secret? Don't worry, you can tell your secret to Bunny the Secret Keeper. Bunny is so dedicated to keeping secrets, especially from his best friend Mei. Mei is not a happy girl, and like most of us, she did some, "not so good" things in her life as well. Like hiding away her friend's toy, or accidentally messed up the library book. One day after Mei told Bunny she now hates her parents the most, Bunny decided "this is enough!" and decided to close his ears for no more secrets. That day, Mei was heart-broken and chose to tell her secret to Bunny but he couldn't hear nothing. Bunny couldn't comfort Mei because he did not know what happened! Luckily, he saw Mei wrote a letter and put it into the drawer. Bunny knew the secrets he missed are sealed in the letter, he must do something to help his best friend. Here begins the journey of a loyal Bunny friend.

Journey Home

燕子回家

"We would soon have to fly to the far South when winter arrives." "But we have such small body, how can we fly so far to the South?" Everyone knows the animal nature of swallows. They fly to the warm South during winter and when it's over, they fly all the way back to the North. Every year they must take such long journey leaving and returning, but we seldom wonder about how do swallows manage to do such long travels with tiny bodies like those? What are some of the natural barriers like weather or enemies must they face? Where do they locate the warm "South" and how do they get back home? Journey Home tells us all about the challenges swallows must experience once a year.

Blue Bird&Tears

青鳥的眼淚

Blue Bird and Tears is a mysterious tea shop. No matter how ridiculous your wish is, the tea shop could make your wish come true at the price of a cup of tea. Four females, a teenage student, a waitress in the sex industry, an advertising designer, and an old lady, all disappear out of the blue after receiving an invitation from the tea house. A college girl, Bai Ling-Lan, attempts to discover the truth behind the urban legends. Although these four women are seemingly no strings attached, they do share something in common: they're all burdened with misery and sadness. And what are the wishes they want to make? As Bai Ling-Lan searches and becomes closer and closer to the core of the mystery, she realizes the truth is more complicated than ever.

The Magic of Teas

灣洲客家奇幻譚

Finalist at the 5th King Car Fantasy Fiction Prize! This book elaborates local disputes and tells Taiwan's great epic of fighting against Japanese. This book is the first Taiwan original Hakka wuxia (martial art) novel, about the magic of tea, taking readers on a romantic journey to reminisce the legendary stories in the parallel past. The spacetime of the book foreshadows the relations between China, Japan, and Taiwan decades ago, and it was the most troubled times. At that period, a Hakka teenager neglected by peers since he's a kid practice martial arts with mysticism. When the epiphany occurred, the secret of the magic of tea was revealed to the teen, and he summoned his people to fight against the largest army!

The Olympics dream of Taiwanese athletes during the Japanese colonial era: the triple challenge of Lin Yue-yun and women sport after the liberation of foot binding.

日本時代臺灣運動員的奧運夢

Taiwanese women were once burdened by the custom of foot binding even when into the days of Japanese colonialization. Such custom not only limited their body mobilities, also excluded them from participating into sports almost completely. The foot bound women can hardly stand on their own, not even to mention running, jumping, or practicing gymnastic. With the banning of foot binding issued by Taiwan Governor-general's Office in 1915, which marked the beginning of 'natural foot era' for the Taiwanese women, whom were finally able to cultivate their athletic ability ever since.

Lin, Yue-Yun, the protagonist of this book, was born right on the year that foot binding was banned. Therefore, she enjoyed the rights to attend P.E. classes and participate into sport competitions at school. Since 1931, Lin began to showcase her dazzling talent and athleticism on the sporting ground of Taiwan and Japan. Being the first generation of Taiwanese female sprinter, despite under the colonization of Japan, she once lived the dream of bringing Taiwan to the world and committed herself in training to take the stages of 1932, 1936 and 1940 Olympics, which unfortunately all failed on the verge of success for different reasons. Despite failing to fulfill her dream of 'glorifying Taiwan through sport', Lin has already served as a role model and paved the way for Taiwanese female athletes in challenging the Olympics.

Sailing around Formosa by a self-built dinghy.

造自己的船·環我們的島

Taiwan is an island, but previous decades of martial law prevented people from getting near the sea. This meant people still had an inhibition about exploring the surrounding waters even years after martial law was lifted in 1987.

Author: Jeremy Chen
Publisher: Niang (Showwe Information)
ISBN: 9789864454119
208 pages | 17 x 23 cm

Two retirees -- James Chang and Jeremy Chen -- both in their 60s, challenged this mindset. In 2018, they used a 14-feet wooden boat they had built to sail around the island in 26 days, stopping at different fishing ports to spend the night. In doing so, they became the first people to sail around Taiwan in a sailing dinghy.

Chen, who had been drawn to the sea from a young age but only sailed for the first time at age 50, recently published a book called "Sailing Around Formosa in a Self-Built Dinghy," which chronicles their months-long adventure, from building the boat to setting sail.

The more than 1,000-kilometer journey taught them not only how to navigate a boat in Taiwan's surrounding waters under sometimes rough sea conditions, it also exposed them to the impact of human activity on the marine ecology.

Along the way, they discovered the importance of friendship and the meaning of life.

Deeper Blue

藍色潮間帶

In the distant future, robots work on ecological restoration after human leave the earth. Day by day. Year by year. This is a small science fiction comic on the encounter and separation of two robots with no connection. As a river mouth restoration robot, my works are nothing else but coral farming, transplanting Kandelia, monitoring migratory birds and some others.

Author: Howard Yang
Illustrator: Yashin
Publisher: Slowork Publishing
ISBN: 9789574371402
24 pages | 14.8 x 21 cm

Someday at the seashore, I found a beached robot whale in my farmland, as an accident toward my tedious lives. At the far vacant time and space, the two robots break into each other’s lives. They talk, share, kill time, and lastly get back to their own lives. It’s like the people we meet in independent travels. Though having much in common, we say them farewell in the morning and continue our own trip. Maybe somehow like two tired office workers sit at the same table in an izakaya. They pour out their heart about the pressure of lives and separate without knowing names.

This short encounter depicts greater boredom with lives. The boredom exists in the here and now, in the past, or somewhere in the distant mechanical future.

The story evoked a strong sense of emotional resonance among readers while it was published in installments on the internet. Upon hearing the news of her mother’s second cancer, office lady Pam Pam was having a wild daydream. It was the summer of 2017, she just got back from a trip to Kyoto, Japan and was immersed in the idea of quitting her job and moving to Japan to study Japanese. As she started doing realistic research, she learned the news of her mother’s cancer. The biopsy showed it was stage two breast cancer. When she hung up the phone, Pam Pam burst into tears.

In February 2019, Pam Pam began publishing installments of Good Friend, Cancer on her Facebook fan page, depicting in single panels what happened after her mother was diagnosed with cancer. The diagnosis not only revealed her mother’s health problem, but also threw the family into turmoil. As her daughter, Pam Pam naturally took up the responsibility to nurse her mother. However, what lies behind this development, which seems perfectly normal in Chinese culture, is a much deeper anxiety.

OT 相談室

A comic about how to live an oddly beautiful life when facing disability. This collection of short stories by an occupational therapist guides us in redefining our “well-being”. Elaine is an occupational therapist and is treating a half-paralyzed man named Zhang Da. Her task is to help Zhang Da maintain everyday activities in his life. To Elaine’s surprise, Zhang Da deals with his condition humorously in contrast to her wary approach. Zhang Da finds a way to control his body after an active bout of rehabilitation. With her wild imagination, Elaine pictures him as someone piloting a robot from within to confidently march onward.

Author: Elaine
Publisher: Slowork Publishing
ISBN: 9789869857321
160 pages | 17 x 23 cm

In addition to successful cases like Zhang Da, the book recounts other stories that made Elaine feel anywhere between helpless and hopeful. Her monologue reveals the inner conflicts between the healthcare system and what she learned in school, as well as the regret Elaine feels when witnessing how a foreign caretaker takes better care of her father than she can. Elaine’s wild and childlike fantasy comics challenge our conceptions of medical science and help us define our own “well-being”. The book is not only her work diary, but a guidebook for everyone facing disability.

Good craftsmanship for living in culture

生活在文化裡的好手藝

Folk art is slowly accumulated from life over a long period of time. Every little bit contains the customs hidden within mountains and rivers as well as handicrafts which are full of wisdom. These handicrafts used in daily life have been passed on from generation to generation, and naturally have become a part of the local culture. In Taiwan, only original tribes, which are surrounded by mountains and far away from the city, lead a pristine life and can find a few craftsmen who still preserve traditional culture. They use natural materials which are from their everyday life, and they use natural methods such as splitting, taking fiber, hammering, roasting, smoking, dip-dyeing, etc. The craftsmanship, completed by these skills and techniques over time as well as by inherited wisdom, has long surpassed the level of art. This book interviews some representative folk artists, and introduces the context of their inherited skills and life-related backgrounds.

Children's Books / Tawan, history, government, suppress, 228

February 28th in Kaohsiung

高雄二二八

The story began with people's expectations and disappointments of the government. People were clearly not satisfied with the quality of their life. On February 27th, 1947, the officer had a conflict with a cigarette vendor. The vendor got hurt badly, and the officer even shot people around him. Taiwanese people were so furious about the lives sacrificed in this fight. They asked the government to take the responsibility and must do something about it. Sadly, the government dealt with the problem by a bloody suppression; it caused a worse tragedy on the next day, February 28th, 1947.

The Blooming of Transplanted Flowers: the Narrative Structure and Local Characteristics of Taiwanese Luntan Opera

移地花競艷：臺灣亂彈戲的敘事結構與 地方特色

It has been nearly two hundred years since Luntan Opera (lān-thān-hì), which originally belonged to Hua Bu Operas of Qing Dynasty, was introduced to Taiwan. Luntan Opera was once popular because it was in great demand in temple fairs. However, after the 1970s, owing to the rivalry of Taiwanese Opera (kua-á-hì), Luntan Opera gradually declined in popularity and some scholars started to call it Beiguan Opera (pak-kuán-hì). This book conducts many interviews with performers and field studies of live performances, compares and analyzes the same story in different drama genres, and studies Taiwanese Luntan Opera's general narrative forms and formulated structures to find out the similarities and differences between Taiwanese Luntan Opera and Chinese drama genres of the same origin. It is hoped that by studying the features of Luntan Opera and its performers' interactions with the audience, the change of mentality of Han immigrants and their descendants can be seen.

This book is an extension of the previous one - Impulse – Psychological Dynamics in Creation. Started from awareness towards the Nature, the corporeal perception of human forms originated from empathetic cognition of either inner-outer bound is transformed into visual expression through abstracted tree forms in this series of works. In this artistic expression and psychological activity in itself, we might be closer to the origin of lyrical expression tradition in civilization. Through this intuitional 'nondual-thinking' in abstract visual expression with empathetic cognition, we could reach the idealistic personality elaborated in disciplined Chi culture.

This book deals with musical modernity of Taiwanese Aborigines, starting with the exploration of "On the Road," a collaboration between Taiwan National Symphony Orchestra and Puyuma musicians from Nanwang Village, a village connected with the National Concert Hall by Highway Nine. The stories this book explores are Aboriginal musical stories hidden in the musical, spanning the time from the period of Japanese colonial rule to the recent "Golden era" of Aboriginal music. This book aims to examine how the Aborigines and settlers shape contemporary Aboriginal music and how the Aborigines create, convey and perceive its meanings through musicking.

The rolling goldfish swam out of the sky in an instant, and one of them was swallowed by the Ouyang Qing River. The boy and girl who claimed to be angels immediately caught the river and threatened coldly: "In short, you knocked it over, and you take responsibility." In order to save small lives, Qinghe can only hold paper fishnets, began to "fish goldfish who know goldfish have not fished half to kill all the way out of the ghost snake god."

Children's Books / tree, life, animal, soul , treasure every day, happiness

The Glowing Tree

發光的樹

“I am a tree that glows. One day, you may also be glowing on my branches. At that time, what day would you like to stay on? Could it be – every day?”

Life is made of countless perfect and imperfect moments. We can't decide people we may encounter and things that may happen, but we may decide what kind of mood to face the highs and lows of life. It is always yourself to decide whether you are happy or not.

Selected in Bologna Illustrators Exhibition, Meng-Yun Chiang chooses to use bright color to tell readers about this story about a tree and about every one of us. We are hoping that the story may help readers accept the sorrows and happiness of life, and seize the time of life, to explore moments that worth celebrating and memorizing.

Dawn of the Island

島之曦

The book uses the protagonist Bingding Lu to list the generation of intellectuals who raised the "Taiwan consciousness", presenting the most vigorous social movement in Taiwan from 1920 to 1930, and interspersed with the history of Hansen's disease. At the same time, it also takes the story of singer Shihao Lin in the 1930s to bring out the pomp of popular music during vinyl record period in the 1930s, and vividly portrayed the era when Taiwan's consciousness was the most vigorous. A special collection of nearly 100 pieces of precious historical images, historical figures and documentary photos from 1920 to 1940 are included.

My Brother in the Room

滌這個不正常的人

After graduating from university, my brother was unemployed and stayed at home for more than ten years. He stayed in the room all day, and only walked out at regular times. He is so sensitive that even going to the kitchen for a glass of water is an arduous task as long as there are people in the living room. He couldn't walk in the crowd, nor take elevators or public transportation. He is the so-called Hikikomori. He doesn't talk to his parents. He has no friends, and his sister, the author, is the only person he talks to. The author recorded truthfully the interaction with his younger brother, and traced the growth process bit by bit by facing the relationship with his parents directly at the same time. This work is not only an exploration of the dark and mysterious mind of the younger brother, but also a deep excavation of the mother, the father, and the self.

老派少女購物路線

During the process of foraging for her sick mother, thousands of old memories came to the author's mind. She recalled how her grandmother saw the prosperous age in her youth, and how she returned to Dadaocheng (a fascinating neighborhood in Taipei) in her young woman's days to show her boss-style to buy ingredients. The author began to write about three generations hand in hand to travel and shop together and completed her unique shopping route and map. Through this book, readers can get to know various expensive and rare ingredient stores, many kinds of traditional dishes, snacks and flavored beverages. In addition to the author's special shopping criteria, you can also read inspiring stories of store owners and enjoy old shops' particular design.

Sisy on Role Model of the Century : Churchill, De Gaulle, Roosevelt

文茜說世紀典範人物：邱吉爾、戴高樂、羅斯福

The times are not creating heroes, but in the times, the exemplary character of certain people makes him a hero of the century. Sisy decided to tell the story of these people, not because of their greatness or historical roles, but because they were ordinary, failed, controversial, excluded, and defeated. The biggest difference between these people and ordinary people is not their background, but the choices they make when facing difficulties. She said: "These role models of 20th century have always been my spiritual support."
