A Queer Invention in Taiwan: A History of Tongzhi Literature

同志文學史：台灣的發明

Having published LGBT science fiction and articles on Chinese-language LGBT literature since the 1990s, Ta-Wei Chi published his first academic monograph, A Queer Invention in Taiwan: A History of Tongzhi Literature (a sample chapter in English is available upon request), in 2017, the year when gay marriage in Taiwan was ruled constitutional. Focusing on modern Taiwan, the most gay-friendly and democratic member of the Sinophone world, A Queer Invention in Taiwan reclaims the public history of the marginalized gay and lesbian identities and desires in Chinese-language newspapers and books from the 1950s to the 2010s (or from the onset of the Cold War to the present day). Chi emphasizes both the Cold War and the Martial Law, contrary to common, facilitated rather than disabled the growth of Taiwanese LGBT literature. According to Chi, the Taiwanese notion of “homosexuality” results less from China or from Japan than from the United States, whose pathologization of homosexuality during the McCarthy era dramatically intervened in Chinese-language newspapers of 1950s Taiwan. Thanks to the huge influence of American culture, lesbian and gay flirtations and characters in literature were thriving rather than absent prior to the lift of the Martial Law. (By Ta-Wei Chi)

The Membrane (Mo)

膜

Originally published in the 1990s, when LGBT activism was blooming in Taiwan, Ta-Wei Chi's science fiction collection is dystopian in the tradition of Philip K. Dick, but with queer adventures. The titular novella Membrane focuses on the tension between Momo, a high-end esthetician, and her manipulative mother. The protagonist feels an unnamable membrane separating her from her mother. The story collection has already been translated and published in Japan and France. The reviews of the French translation are available upon request. (By Ta-Wei Chi)

In the Realm of Queer Senses (Gangguan shijie)

感官世界

Ta-Wei Chi's first story collection, In the Realm of Queer Senses, materialized in the 1990s, a decade known for a flourishing of Chinese-language LGBT literature in Taiwan. Spiced up with “in-your-face” sex, the sardonic and whimsical stories in the collection, ranging from science fiction to thrillers, challenge the heteronormativity and Confucian ethics so ingrained across the Sinophone world. These witty stories gave the fin-de-siècle reader representations of the queerness once unrepresentable in the Sinophone sphere. The collection is being translated into French. (By Ta-Wei Chi)

Fang Si-Chi's First Love Paradise

房思琪的初戀樂園

This is an astonishing and unique novel. The author possesses a highly-honed sensitivity and is simultaneously a witness at close range, thus preserving the whole affair like a "specimen of survival." From a perspective that closely follows the victim, the story unflinchingly and repeatedly examines the pain of having something precious taken away from you by someone who takes such pleasure in the predation.

AMPUS Technology Co., Ltd. (www.ampus.com.tw) provides design and production service to the customer who adopts electronic device as a tool in reviving printed contents to cope with the tech-savvy trend. AMPUS supplies quality of optical identification devices, i.e., coding education robot and reading pens/talking pens. AMPUS Tech has an experienced senior team in developing related products more than decades and manufacturing in Taiwan.

CEOID (Coding Education Optical Identification Device) robot is designed for content publishers who are interested in bringing Computational Thinking (CT) into products. With two OID modules, players could not only give robot command cards step by step or in sequence as coding to program, but also content cards to gaming or learning.

Computational Thinking (CT) is one of the essentials for all to solve problems in today of the cyber world. It is not discipline but a process or thinking which apply to all disciplines. This robot is developed both plugged and unplugged activities of play & learn by command cards input and plugged activities wherein to work with the app through smartphone/tablet or laptop.

AMPUS Technology collaborated with the publisher and educator to come up with various contents or curriculums, starting with Kindergarten players. This book as an example that gives players concept of environmental protection as the theme of outer space adventures via tasks at 3 level of difficulty with the computational thinking process.

Users of products shall benefit from computational thinking exercise to build the capability to tackle many problems in daily life. Publishers could revive contents to deal with new demand in digital computation world. Educators would have an additional tool to generate more lively and creative atmosphere in the classroom.

To Read or Not To Read, That Is My Question

不愛讀書不是你的錯

"Make it a rule never to give a child a book you would not read yourself." - George Bernard Shaw

Less and less people are visiting the bookstore down the street. The bookstore owner's son gathers his friends to discuss whether they want to read and buy books at the store anymore. To read or not to read? Indeed, that is the question.

Under the Same Moon

同一個月亮

Our hearts are bathed in the same moonlight, and full of the same yearning. Han-han waits by the window as if he's waiting for someone to come. Han-han sees a lion coming. The lion has a nail stuck in his paw. Han-han carefully takes the nail out, fixes the wound up, puts on a bandage, and comforts him. Han-han still waits by the window, nervous and excited. He is waiting for his father, who hasn't come back in so long...

The Southwest in Ming-Qing Literary Imagination

明清文學中的西南敘事

The "Southwest" in Ming-Qing literature represents a convergence of culture, politics, war, aesthetics, etc. Outsider literati adopted different means to understand unfamiliarity found within natural and cultural landscapes. The Ming-Qing literature on the Southwest offered a sharp yet peripheral entry point in its literary taste and cultural realization.

Politics of Legitimacy 合法性的政治

This book argues that state power can only be legitimized in three ideal-typical ways: a set of values that a state is upholding (ideological legitimacy), recognized political processes such as regular competitive election (procedural legitimacy), or capacity of public goods provision (performance legitimacy). Based on this theory, the author has analyzed different aspects of Chinese politics.

Taiwan's Imagined Geography 臺灣的想像地理

Until 300 years ago, the Chinese considered Taiwan a "land beyond the seas," a "ball of mud" inhabited by "naked and tattooed savages." In representing distant lands and ethnically diverse peoples of the frontiers to audiences in China properly, these works transformed places once considered non-Chinese into familiar parts of the empire and thereby helped to naturalize Qing expansionism.

NATIONAL PALACE MUSEUM

National Palace Museum

國立故宮博物院

The National Palace Museum (hereinafter NPM) holds 690,000 pieces of ancient Chinese artifacts. In order to advocate the beauty and aesthetics of ancient Chinese arts, the NPM has been actively promoting its licensing services. With various categories of licensing initiatives (such as images, videos, publication, and brand licensing), ancient Chinese artifacts get several new takes in terms of form and popular culture. Not only does licensing boost the average person's recognition of NPM's collections, it also strengthens the capacity of Taiwan's cultural creative industry, establishing the milestone of successfully merging people's daily lives with classical aesthetics.
